Fliers May Not Get Away Until Wednesday

WEATHER NOT FAVORABLE TO OCEAN FLIGHT

Bertaud Plans Trip to Capital to Test Out Plane "Columbia"

Mineola, N. Y., May 16—(AP)—Chances of any one of the three New York to Paris airplanes getting away tomorrow seemed remote today as unfavorable weather showed an obstinacy distressing to the flyers. It was hoped that Wednesday would bring an opportunity to hop off, Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, "lone horseman of the air", while waiting for the weather to clear, looked at reports with dubious eyes. He goes alone throughout and he can leave when the spirit and weather reports move him. He has no prediction when that will be. He motored into New York today to get a passport.

Possibility of a flight by the Delancey monoplane "Columbia" to Washington this afternoon was announced today by G. Bellanca, designer of the plane. He said the flight was planned to permit Lloyd V. Bertaud, who will act as navigator on the trans-Atlantic flight, to make final tests.

SETTLE DIFFERENCES

New York, May 16—(AP)—Three monoplanes today awaited only favorable weather to start on nonstop flights to Paris, although last minute differences threatened for a time to wreck plans of one contender.

Possibility that Clarence D. Chamberlin and Lloyd Bertaud might not navigate the monoplane "Columbia" in its race with Commander Richard E. Byrd's "America" and Captain Charles Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis", arose as a result of a dispute between the two fliers and Charles A. Levine, chief backer of their flight over terms.

The discussion was settled, however, by arranging for a new contract that appeared a victory for the aviators. They sought and received assurance of $50,000 each for their wives in case of mishap and guaranteeing of all the money rewards, totaling upwards of $100,000 offered by the government.

Reports of heavy fogs and winds over the greater portion of the mid-Atlantic, with no signs of clearing, continued to be received by the fliers. The flight within 24 hours was called inadvisable by the weather bureau.

Laborites Bolt House of Commons in Debate

London, May 16—(AP)—All the labor members walked out of the House of Commons this afternoon in protest when Premier Baldwin moved a resolution limiting debate on the government's trades union bill to 16 days. The bill would outlaw strikes of a coercive nature.

John R. Clines, as spokesman for the opposition, called the government's action "contemptuous and disgraceful" and declared that as a protest against the "gag and bullying" the laborites would leave the House. Ironical cheers and laughter burst from the government benches as the laborites filed out.

PRISONER CUTS THROAT AFTER "HEARING LIONS"

Sanity of Negro Will be Investigated if He Gets Well

Freeport, Ill.—Lions roaring outside the window of his cell so terrified Oliver Stewart, 35, a prisoner in the county jail, that he slashed his throat with a safety razor blade about 1 o'clock Saturday morning, he told Sheriff John F. Hayes and doctors who were called to attend him after other prisoners discovered the negro lying on the floor in a pool of blood.

Stewart, just out of a hospital, where he was taken a month ago after a policeman shot him, was rushed back again. He has a fair chance of recovery, doctors here said. Stewart, said, but it is evident the man's mental state is far from normal.

Stewart a month ago had a quarrel with his landlady, Mrs. Carrie Meyers, negro, when she demanded payment of rent for the room he had been occupying at her home. To get together they left the Meyers' house in East Freeport and went over to the interurban station, where Stewart said he had checked his belongings, including money and other valuables.

Near the station he changed his mind about paying, and when the woman, frightened, left him, he followed her along the street until they neared police headquarters. As she turned toward the station he drew a revolver. An officer nearby called him to drop the gun, but Stewart then turned it on the officer, who whipped out his own gun and shot the negro. It is probable his sanity will be inquired into as soon as he recovers from the razor wound.

Bootlegger is Captured; Had List of Customers

A stranger giving the name of L. M. Betts of Chicago, driving a Ford coupe bearing an Indiana license number, was arrested by Sheriff Ward Miller shortly after 1 o'clock today. The stranger was said to have been soliciting orders for whiskey when the sheriff took him in custody and escorted him to the county jail.

In Betts' car was found several quarts of Scotch liquor and a suit case was filled with a popular brand of bourbon in pint bottles. An information was filed in the county court this afternoon by Sheriff Miller, charging Betts with possessing and transporting the liquor and he was to be given a hearing before Judge Leach at once. Another young man and woman, who claimed Chicago as their home, were released. Betts claiming ownership of the car and the liquor.

RUTH AND HENRY RETRACE ROAD OF THEIR 'HONEYMOON'

But Today's Trip Ended at Death House of Sing Sing Prison

Ossining, N. Y., May 16—(AP)—The gates of Sing Sing prison closed today behind Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, having successful appeal, the two, convicted of the murder of her husband, will never pass out alive.

The trip from New York was made at breakfast speed in two closed automobiles and with a heavy escort.

Gray was in the first car with four deputy sheriffs. In the other sat Mrs. Snyder between two matrons, with whom she was seen to be chatting.

For dinner today Mrs. Snyder had pork, beans, bread and tea. For supper she will have fried eggs, potatoes, prunes and milk.

New York, May 16—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray today began their journey to Sing Sing's death house, where they are to die for the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband.

Mrs. Snyder, having said goodbye to her mother and her 9-year-old daughter Lorraine, was hurried into an automobile where she sat between two women deputy sheriffs. Gray, her former paramour, was taken in a second automobile, manacled to two under sheriffs.

Their automobiles were escorted through New York by motorcycle police.

Mrs. Snyder was dressed in the black coat and hat she wore during the trial. Her face was pale, but she seemed to bear up well. Gray, with a tight step, his head erect.

The route to Ossining led them over a road they travelled on their "honeymoon" in 1925 when they made an upstate trip in Gray's car.

At Sing Sing Mrs. Snyder will be put in one of three cells in the death house reserved for women. Gray will occupy one of 12 cells for men.

Cunnane tearfully testified how he had dropped his revolver on the floor in a room at the Claridge Hotel and it was accidentally discharged. Other witnesses testified that Best described the shooting as an "unfortunate funny accident" for which his friend should not be blamed.

Best was here for a meeting of the "Forty and Eight," a social organization of overseas veterans, of which he formerly was the Illinois head. He was a past commander of the Quincy American Legion post. Cunnane and another deputy sheriff, were enroute from Menard, Ill., penitentiary to Quincy with two prisoners.

WORST OF LOUISIANA'S FLOOD SHOULD BE KNOWN THIS WEEK

HOOPER SAYS AFTER A SURVEY

New Orleans, La., May 16—(AP)—Rolling relentlessly down the fertile west side of the Atchafalaya basin, water from ten major crevasses in the Bayou des Glaises levees today drew closer to St. Mary and St. Martin parishes, spreading devastation on its way to the Gulf of Mexico.

The crevasses are approximately 150 miles northwest of New Orleans. Avoyelles and St. Landry parishes, with their crops of corn and sugar cane, already have been submerged. Thousands of persons have been driven out and other thousands are prepared to leave.

"ENEMY'S" FLEET WILL ATTEMPT TO TAKE NEW ENGLAND

Capture of New York is Also Aim of Black Fleet of Navy

New York, May 16—(AP)—Somewhere off New England there gathered today a powerful "enemy" fleet, theoretically guarding a huge convoy of troop-laden transports intent on landing and "capturing" New York City and the rich industrial area of New England. All of the fleet's "enemy" fleet was preparing to repel the invaders, while on shore was concentrated a "depleted" army.

Such was the theoretical situation which for several days will occupy attention of the United States fleet and the regular army troops stationed in New England as they engage in a war game on a gigantic scale.

Fresh from a two weeks' visit to New York, more than 100 vessels of the navy were headed for the ocean today where they will be divided, one section to become the "enemy" or the black navy, while the other becomes the blue.

Once the maneuvers start, the problem for the blue forces will be to "spot" the "enemy" fleet. Airplane and radio will be brought into play, while back at blue headquarters intelligence officers will be busy decoding messages from their scouts and endeavoring to decipher the coded messages sent by the invaders and intercepted.

Because of the congregation of all army aircraft for air maneuvers in Texas, the blue forces have had to borrow airplanes from the navy.

Two Taken in Raid on Road House Near Grandy Sunday Eve

(Telegraph Special Service)
Oregon, May 16—Sheriff Sam Good and a force of deputies conducted a raid Saturday night at a road house about three miles north of Grand Detour on the Black Hawk Trail where they seized a quantity of gambling paraphernalia and arrested J. E. Speroni and A. H. Staton. The two men, who were said to be operating the crap game in a small building were brought to Oregon and furnished bonds.

The sheriff found a large crap table, ready for operation, several pairs of dice, playing cards and about $200 in change. The raiding party apparently arrived too early for the game to be in progress, but all of the equipment was loaded up and taken to Oregon. Sheriff Good returned to the place about 2 o'clock Sunday morning to find that the place had been entirely vacated.

Speroni claims Sterling as his home and Staton told the sheriff that he resided east of Sterling in Lee county.

NEW SENSATION IN INDIANA PROBE OF POLITICS IS TOLD

Indianapolis Mayor Says Attempt Was Made to Get Him to Quit

Indianapolis, Ind., May 16—(AP)—Immunity in the investigation into charges of alleged political corruption in Indiana has been offered Mayor J. L. Duval of Indianapolis if he and City Controller Buser will resign. Money was offered, the mayor added. The offers were refused.

"Money sufficient for each of us to retire and the entire matter relating to this probe would be disposed of if the controller and myself would resign," was the proposition the mayor said "a representative of a certain political faction" proposed about a week ago.

"About two days later a Catholic minister of this city promised me that the investigation would not affect me if I would consider the replacing of the city controller with one to be selected by the above faction," the mayor continued. He said he made no reply.

Mayor is Not Afraid

Mayor Duval declared shortly afterward that the man who had previously visited him renewed his offer and admitted that the faction he represented was anxious to gain control of the city administration. The mayor said he replied that he was not bartering or trading his position as mayor or had no fear of any investigation.

The statement comes on the eve of promulgation of laws of the 1927 general assembly for which Prosecutor William H. Henry has said he was awaiting before filing affidavits as a result of more than seven weeks investigation of the purported corruption in Indiana politicians and officials.

The new laws would strengthen the affidavits.

PURPOSE OF EARLY MORN WALK GIVEN

Reported to Have Said He Was Going to Inspect Fish Lines

Sam Fletcher of West First street, who was shot Saturday morning, was reported to be resting comfortably today at the Dixon public hospital, with little change in his condition. Attending physicians hoped to be able to save the right arm which was badly shattered above the elbow. It was also stated that one of the shot had penetrated the right side of the abdomen and several passed through his clothing and lodged near the left elbow.

Fletcher was still suffering from shock and the loss of blood, and had made no detailed statement to the authorities as to how he sustained the gun wound. He is said to have told conflicting stories as to how he was wounded, but late Saturday night admitted having been shot while on the Buckaloo farm west of Dixon on the Rock Island road. Fletcher is reported to have made a statement then that he went west on the Rock Island road to the Buckaloo farm Saturday morning for the purpose of looking after out lines which he had placed in Rock river and that while passing the barn, he was shot.

Officials who were investigating the case early Saturday, stated today that pieces of rope found in Fletcher's pocket were identical in texture with that which was fastened about the neck of the calf which was being led from the barn, and that a trail of blood had been found leading from the scene of the shooting to the river bank. In his statement, is said to have denied that any one accompanied him and that he had gone to the river at the early morning hour for the purpose of looking at his fishing lines.

COLLEGE RANKS

Member Gorgas Memorial Institute Discusses Theory

By J. T. McDavid, M. D., Deatur, Ill.

Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

The increasing number of suicides in our colleges gives us cause to pause a moment and wonder what is really the underlying reason for this self destruction.

In my college days we never heard of a member of the student body possessing the desire to take his own life. The President of the school and the members of the faculty somehow or other had time to come into personal contact with each one of us.

Then consciously tried to make men and women out of us; "book learnin'" was a secondary consideration. They knew what some of the instructors of the colleges today seem not to know, that the things written in the books would soon be forgotten;

and that the essential thing was that we should obtain the proper ideas of life.

There seems to be a different notion in many schools, now-a-days. I say "seems" because the very schools which give the impression may well deny its presence. My children, at any rate, are obsessed with the idea that they must know the things that are written in the books at a cost.

Of course I would not have them neglect their lessons; but when a system requires the loss of sleep and the exhaustion of the principal energies, then too much importance is being given to "book learnin'".

In the "olden days" in college we were instructed by our parents to seek some good doctor in the community and have him look after our physical health. The college doctor is just as important to the schools as the family doctor is to the modern family, and neither of them should ever be eliminated.

Every college should have a physician for every 500 students, and members of the faculty should listen to his advice in regard to the students, for whom he should make a regular twice-yearly physical examination.

If special attention be given the physical condition of the students, and if the faculty of the college will return just a little to the method of trying to make men and women instead of "walking encyclopedias," and if they will come into more personal contact with the student body, and take the kind of interest in the students that they would take in the lives of their own children, the present wave of suicides in our colleges would not only be eliminated but the graduates would be better able to cope with the complexity of our present day civilization.

OLD MASTERS

I've plucked the berry from the bush, the brown nut from the tree, But heart of happy little bird ne'er broken was by me. I saw them in their curious nests, close cooing, slyly peer With their wild eyes, like glittering beads, to note if harm were near; I passed them by, and blessed them all; I felt that it was good To leave unmoved the creatures small whose home was in the wood.

Daven School Closed Tuesday

The Daven school, of which Mrs. Will Fitzpatrick is the teacher, closed a very successful year's work with a delicious picnic dinner served at noon last Tuesday to forty guests and pupils.

A splendid program was also rendered, consisting of humorous readings, songs and dialogues.

The school house was decorated with colored drawings, many health posters and a four season project, being done with crayons, scissors and paste, by pupils of the school. Apple blossoms and sprigs of pussy willows and colored blackboard pictures, completed the adornment.

After the dinner a good ball game took place, and prizes were also offered for sack races, running and jumping races, which ended with a peanut "scramble." Kodak pictures were taken as souvenirs of a happy day, well spent—pictures to be placed in closing day booklets awarded by the teacher as mementoes to her pupils.

A splendid exhibit of the children's handwork was also on display. During the year, the period after the last recess was devoted each Friday to hand embroidery and sewing by the girls, and carpenter work by the boys.

The girls made towels, hot pan-holders, dresses, bureau scarfs and hemmed 10 sash curtains for the school house, besides weaving ham-mocks, rugs on small hand loom and patching and darning hosiery. Raffle and red baskets were also made. The boys constructed bread boards, book shelves, ink stands, bird houses, match scratchers, letter racks, book ends and paper knives.

On December 14th a successful social was given and the proceeds bought 68 library books and needed material for manual training and carpenter work. A Chinese village was constructed, also enough furniture of heavy construction, to furnish a four room doll house. All the work was done by eleven pupils.

There was one graduate, Dorothy Newman, with an average of 93 per cent. There were only two cases of tardiness, due to a November blizzard and snow blocked roads. One pupil, Dorothy Newman, was neither absent nor tardy the entire year. Prizes were awarded each month for attendance and perfect spelling lessons. Two pupils, Charlotte Bradley and Patricia Fitzpatrick, deserve especial mention for general excellence in all school work, having four months of perfect spelling lessons. Two other pupils, Cecil and Lois Piper, deserve special credit, for when the bridge was partially out and the road almost impassable, they walked four and one half miles to school one morning and arrived before school time. The school year was marked by one sad memory, the loss of Clarence Piper, a second grade pupil on Christmas eve after a long illness, dating from October 18th, from complications developing from diseased tonsils.

Ill. Federation Women's Clubs

Danville, Ill.—(AP)—Delegates from 825 clubs, representing approximately 75,000 women, will gather here Tuesday for the thirty second annual convention of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, which will last four days.

Annual business of the federation will occupy the greater part of the four day meeting. A number of speakers, however, will address the convention.

As principal speaker, Brig. Gen. John McAuley Palmer, U. S. A. retired, former assistant chief of staff under General Pershing and a former resident of Illinois, will appear at the Wednesday evening session. Gen. Palmer will speak on "Preparedness for Peace."

The meeting is to open Tuesday morning with an address of welcome by Mrs. M. L. Conant, president of the local women's club, and a response by Mrs. Walter Seymour, Chicago, president of the Federation.

Three other speakers will be heard Tuesday, John T. Harrison, editor of the Danville Commercial-News, will speak on "Constructive Publicity." Mrs. Annie Peaks Kenney, representing the General federation, will describe systems of home budgeting. Prof. James L. Lardner, professor of public speaking at Northwestern University, Evanston, will give an address on Abraham Lincoln, including a reading by Ida M. Tarbell, "The Open Road to Peace."

Thursday morning, Dr. Frank T. Duffy, regional manager of the United States Veterans' Bureau, will describe conditions in the veterans' bureau of Illinois. That afternoon, Mrs. Mary Oberdorfer, Chicago, will speak on the subject, "Your Park in America's Musical Future."

The last scheduled speaker is Eugene T. Lies, Chicago, special representative of the Playground and Recreation Association, whose subject is "The Challenge of Youth." Mr. Lies will speak Friday morning.

Fry Home Has Been Remodeled

The home of Mrs. Barbara Fry, 523 College avenue has been remodeled, and situated as it is, on the beautiful corner lot it now makes one of the most attractive residence properties in town. A sun porch, with many nicely proportioned windows has been added in the front, and the entire residence has been covered with creosote shingles, (shingles in the natural wood color). The window frames have been painted white with black sashes and the entire color ensemble is rich and satisfying. The interior of the porch has been painted a color which corresponds exactly with the exterior of the house. In the rear a most attractive little closed in porch has also been added, which will also be screened in. The interior of the house has been remodeled and painted and the kitchen enlarged. The shingles of the roof of the house match the walls, giving a most finished effect. Mrs. Fry has a fine garden in the rear of her home. Ed Franks did the remodeling of the home, with Frank Bender as assistant, both working under the direction of Mrs. Fry.

WAR RISK INSURANCE.

War risk insurance may be reinstated until July 2. Ten years have elapsed since issuance of this insurance was begun. At the end of the war thousands of soldiers dropped their insurance because conditions that brought it into existence had changed. During the passing of a decade there must have been many more changes, which warrant resumption of the insurance and reinstatement of the policies.

Within the ten years thousands of soldiers have been removed from the state of partial dependence upon parents to the state of being men with dependents. Other thousands have been removed from the class of those responsible only to themselves to the class of those responsible for families. Other thousands have changed from the position of feeling unable to carry on the premiums for the war risk insurance, low as they were, to earning capacity sufficient to warrant resumption of the relations.

Soldiers have been provided the best secured insurance in the world at the lowest rate. It is available to men who served in war and to none of the rest of us. Hundreds of thousands of men so favored have failed to take advantage of the opportunity offered. We are quite sure that the time will come when they will regret it.

The government has been making concessions from time to time with reference to reinstatements, but that can go on indefinitely, if common principles of insurance are observed. It can not be expected of the government that in addition to providing the insurance it shall assume responsibility of negligence of soldiers to take advantage of the offers.

The American Legion has devoted its agencies to urging members to take care of this financial protection. It has furnished service to members in the process of obtaining reinstatements. It may be consulted by any soldier who has failed to give attention to the matter and who desires to reinstate before July 2.

FLOOD CONTROL PROJECTS.

Speaking to the flood control committee in session in Peoria, William Lorimer, former United States senator from Illinois, said that the present Mississippi river flood is not the greatest. He said that more land was under water, more damage was done and more lives were lost in 1912 and 1913.

We forget these things quickly unless we are in close touch with comparable statistics. Mr. Lorimer has been a sort of a guardian of affairs in connection with the Mississippi and the Illinois rivers, and we are inclined to take his word in the matter. If that is the truth, then the situation is worse than we had suspected. There have been reports that combination of circumstances contributed to this disaster in a manner that might not occur again so soon.

Congressman Sears of Omaha warned that the day will come when the big snows of the Alleghenies and the Rockies will add their flood waters at the same time, wiping out New Orleans. He urged that water be impounded for irrigation in the semi-arid sections of the west. He said that drought in the west has done damage amounting to $500,000,000, and that the water that threatens to flood the lowlands can be held back to prevent crop damage in one area flood damage in another.

United States army engineers are inclined to view levee protection as sufficient if the levees are made higher. That may be the quickest method of dealing with the situation, as hundreds of miles of levees already are standing. On the other hand, there is the larger view, which contemplates use of water for power and for irrigation. Those seem to be the two extremes of offers of protection against a repetition of the flood of 1927.

A FRIEND OF THE NAVY.

A New York lass admitted she had four husbands who were sailors. Ha! A sweetheart on every ship!... The young lady told police she had a weak heart. A weak heart but a rosy one. We just knew there would be trouble when both the Atlantic and Pacific fleets came to New York at once. She believes in preparedness, anyhow, having a navy all her own like that.

France announces a plan of super-fortifications to be erected soon. Getting ready for the American Legion convention.

New phonograph records, made of brass, will last 1000 years, they say. We've heard some of the variety now being used that surely were older than that.

Brush your teeth before and after kissing, the dentists advise. Better stuff a little cotton into your ears, too. The smack may deafen one.

The synthetic age has progressed far—but hasn't gone to a man's head yet.

Too many women are killing their husbands, say the police-women. This movement should be curtailed a little, to be successful.

Schools on trains and in boats are among the new ventures. Anything to keep the young folk from committing suicide!

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The elephant took quite a load, and as the band of Tinsies rode, they laughed in glee, and Scouty said, "I'll bet we look a sight. At first I really was afraid, but now real friends with him we've made, and though he has a lion's head, I'm sure he will not bite."

Old Daffydoo stood right close by, and soon the Tinsies heard him cry, "Giddyap, there Bosco! Do your best to carry them around." So Bosco trotted like a horse and 'twasn't very long, of course, until he had them laughing as he shook them up and down.

Right over hills and dales they went, and when an hour of fun was spent, the funny looking elephant just squatted to the ground. Wee Clowny jumped and took a flop and Carpy said, "Here's where we stop." And then they looked behind them and old Daffydoo was found.

A little shed, no far away, looked like a dandy place to play, and Scouty asked old Daffy if he'd mind their going there. "Why, bless my soul," the kind man said, "why should I care? Go right ahead." But when they reached the little place a big sign said, "Beware!"

"I'm not afraid," brave Clowny cried. "Just wait now till I peek inside." And when he did he gave a shout which indicated glee. "It's full of ponies," he announced. And in the shed the whole band possessed. Each one hopped on a pony and was happy as a could be.

They rode out in the open air and rode right up to Daffy there. "We're going to have a race," he said, "right down the road and back. I'll soon find out how much you know of riding. Lead on now—and go!" And off the midget ponies went, a-sailing down the track.

SAINT and SINNER

"Oh, Faith, darling, thank you! You were wonderful! I—I love you so, honey! I'll never be selfish and mean to you again!" Cherry sobbed, after Faith had retold on the stand the same story she previously had related as a witness for the state.

"The court will recess for lunch," Judge Grimshaw announced, as Churchill rose to call his next witness.

"You were magnificent, Miss Faith, magnificent!" Churchill boomed at the trembling, overwrought girl.

"I'd rather die than go through an ordeal like that again!" Faith quavered, her eyes imploring Bob to rescue her. "Banning is terrible. He made me feel as if I were the defendant, as if I had committed some frightful crime and he was punishing me before all these people. But if I helped Cherry—"

"You did, darling! The jury loved you! Even the red-headed foreman who has been scowling and biting his nails most of the time—wiped tears out of his eyes. But come along now and get some luncheon, or you'll be sick abed again. Coming, Mr. Lane?"

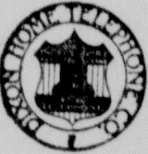

Bob turned to Faith's father, who was hanging back humbly, his meek brown eyes filled with tears of sympathy for his favorite daughter.

"Reckon not," Jim Lane refused apologetically. "I promised Junior and Fay that I'd have a snack with them at the cafeteria, across the street. Take care of yourself, daughter. Don't let her catch cold, Bob!"

Bob guided Faith out of the courthouse and across the street to the looking place, his arm across her nervously twitching shoulders. When the car was out of the traffic jam about Courthouse Square Faith suddenly collapsed, her body sagging against Bob's shoulder, the tears falling thick and fast down her pale cheeks.

Bob did not urge her not to cry. Instead he carefully avoided looking at her, and began to talk cheerfully. "Thanks, Bob!" Faith's voice quivered, but her tears had almost ceased to flow and her tired eyelids opened. "Oh, there's Lincoln Park, just ahead. Drive past Kelly's newsstand, dear. There's just a chance that our phantom cripple will be out begging today and we'll get a look at him at last. I feel that we're going to find him, Bob."

Bob immediately followed her directions, while Faith leaned out of the car, straining her eyes to catch a glimpse of the much-sought old man whose footprints so strangely matched those which Bob had found under his uncle's bedroom window the night of the murder.

"By George! There he is!" Bob exclaimed. "Wonder why old Kelly did not get word to me that Phil was at his old stand today? He promised I'm going to park the car here and we can decide what to do."

Faith shuddered as her eager eyes studied the twisted, stooping, dirty, gray-haired old cripple, who peered through smoked glasses at the crowds which streamed past his outstretched box of lead pencils and chewing gum. He was leaning against the lamp post at one of the four entrances to the park, his body so contorted that it was impossible even for Bob Hathaway, hardened as he was to the sordid sights of the city, to repress a shiver of pity.

TOMORROW: The cripple, in a taxicab, leads Faith and Bob on a wild goose chase.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Very pleasant hast thou been unto me; thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women.—II Samuel 1:23.

year, and auditorium, a grabage-incinerator, a 1000-acre annex to the city park and a new criminal courts building.

Then wideawake business men induced the southern office of a big publishing house to locate there, and got another national organization to build a $500,000 annex to its New Orleans plant.

On top of this, the Association of Commerce fathered the International

And now a list of civic improvements calling for a total expenditure of $250,000,000 has been compiled.

A Solid Base

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is a business organized on a colossal scale, but its methods of operation are as simple, the foundation upon which it is built is as solid as a "one man" business in which the owner knows personally every worker and every customer.

The principles of successful business do not alter with the years or vary with differences in size. They are the same always for all organizations, large or small.

Fair-dealing—honesty of purpose—sincerity in word and deed—form the solid base of principles upon which all successful business must be built.

The public insists that this shall be true. The public is made up of a great mass of men and women who are quick to detect fraud and deceit. A few people may be fooled—but never the great mass of people who make or break a business.

For it is the public that decides the success of any business. People cannot be forced to buy things against their will. They buy the products of that organization which they know they can depend upon to give them the highest quality at the lowest possible price. They insist on fair dealing, honesty, sincerity.

The ever-increasing demand of the people of the Middle West for Standard Oil Company (Indiana) products—which has made necessary its steady growth—has shown their appreciation of these principles.

The people of the Middle West have learned that they can depend on the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). They know that its products are reliable—always the same. They know that they will meet fairness and honesty in any dealings they may have with the Company.

The very name of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has stood for faithful service and fidelity to right principles for so many years that when the Company introduces a new product to the public, thousands of people are instantly ready to try it, confident that it will maintain the reputation of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Such a reputation for integrity is built up in only one way, whether the smallest store in the smallest village, or a large organization like the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) serving ten states is concerned—by the simple system of fair dealing, honesty of purpose, sincerity in word and deed.

In the smallest store in the smallest village one man practices these principles, whereas in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) shareholders, directors, employees practice them unfailingly—generation after generation. Men come and go, but the name of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and the principles for which it stands endure.

What Every Girl Should Know

By GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Mary Sullivan—slender, beautiful, red-headed—is an orphan. Wally Mason, a young reporter, loves Mary. But she disbelieves in love. Mary's elder brother, David, is sentenced to prison for an auto fatality. The Charity Department takes Bobby, the younger. Mary gets a job in a night club. It is noted. Mary, judged to have criminal influences, is sentenced to a reform school. She runs away to visit Bobby, who is ill. Arthur Graham, rich young man involved in David's conviction, intervenes in Mary's behalf. He takes her and Bobby to live with him.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

Robert rose as he saw the regal figure of Mrs. Graham leaving the house, with the court as her evident destination. He was meticulously polite, was young Robert, and hurried forward to give the old lady his arm.

"Well," said Mollie Sumner Graham, as she placed her hand on his shoulder, and transferred her black lace parasol to the other arm, "well, which of the knights are we today, Robert?"

Mollie felt that she could afford to unbend to Robert, who was a very well-behaved child, and who was, besides, too young to be anything but a pawn for others. Meaning Mary. Hence the gracious unbending to young Bob for his own sake, and that the contrast of her attitude to Mary might be the colder.

"I am always Sir Lancelot, Mrs. Graham," said Robert gravely. The "Aunt Mollie" and "Uncle Jasper" of Arthur's reckless prophecy had never come about. "I am always Sir Lancelot because he was the bravest."

"Yes? Seems to me, Bob, seems to me," Mollie wrinkled the pink and white smoothness of her brow,

"Lift up your eyes that I may see your surrender."

"that Lancelot was not so brave. Did he not love Elaine, and run away?"

"Did he, mother?" Arthur pulled her head back in the crook of his arm, and kissed her cheek where it smelled of rice-powder.

"Did he love and run away?" This exuberant son was a stranger to Mollie, a stranger to whom, however, she had grown accustomed since Mary had come to the house on the gentle sloping hill. Her suspicious eyes watched him keenly. He was in love with the little red-haired girl, but did not yet know the why and whereof of the blood singing in her veins. The short-lived affair with Bernice had been an instance wherein keen admiration had played a great part, and which Arthur had reckoned with as love. This was different, and Mollie groaned with the knowledge.

Arthur had slipped his hand beneath her arm and was leading her toward the wicker chair beneath the elms. "Who was it who loved and ran away, Mother?" he queried. "Lancelot," explained Robert, and there was a worried frown creasing his forehead. "Personally, I don't believe it. Your mother says so, though," he added quickly, and in haste lest he accuse Mollie of lying.

"He did, Robert," Mary had joined the group with tennis racket under her arm, and had thrown herself at Mrs. Graham's feet, smiling shyly. "He loved, and laughed, and went away." And her eyes looked off into the blue haze of mist. Lancelot had loved and gone away, and Wally had told of his love and gone away. She had written to him since coming to the Grhams. It had been the second letter since leaving Garden City a short two months ago. There had been no response to either, strangely enough. "Indian giver," thought Mary. "He gives and regrets." Which was hardly fair of Mary. But, oh, life had suddenly grown stale, and she could not solve the riddle as to why it had lost its old zest. She settled back more securely against the foot of the bed.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

by Anne Austin

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE SHELTON, employees from the big T. Q. CURTIS department store, are taken into the home of their employer as his wards for one year, because he wants to help them further their education.

The other two he to enjoy T. Q.'s generosity.

Billy is fascinated with DAL ROMAIN, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, hostess. She is harassed by the fact that he is "playing" both her and Winnie. Despite her infatuation, Billy tenderly remembers CLAY CURTIS, son of her benefactor who has disinherited himself and is living with Billy's mother in a poor part of the town, working in a factory by day, and writing a symphony at night. He has published some popular songs and is beginning to command notice.

Unknown to T. Q., the girls learn he intends adopting one of them when the year is up and Winnie and Nyda begin a series of intrigues for his affection.

T. Q. begins to question the wisdom of his philanthropic experiment when he observes that Billy loses interest in her violin and that Nyda is not after all interested in fulfilling her ambition of becoming a kindergarten teacher. He takes them to Europe for a few months, hoping the trip will broaden them. On their return, they find a Hindu fortune teller who tells the girls something of intimate things. He is driven out of town and Dal Romaine's simultaneous disappearance makes Billy wonder if he were the safe-bearer's accomplice. She hears from him occasionally.

One night Nyda asks Billy to go to the library and get a book she has left there. Billy complies and while there breaks a bread of hands. While she is picking them out, the butter comes in and she hears a familiar whistle and stealing down to the garden, she finds Dal Romaine.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIX

BEFORE she was in Dal Romaine's arms, before she felt his long-desired lips upon hers again, Billy was shaking with a frenzy of delight.

"Are you really back?" she begged huskily. "Oh, Dal, Dal! I've been breaking my heart over you! Why did you stay away so long!"

The man's laugh was low and rich with satisfaction. "Business, Mignon, precious. One of us has to think of the Romaine family's future! It won't be long now, will it, darling? Mr. and Mrs. Dalhart Romaine! Do you like the sound of it?"

"Oh, Dal!" she cried out sharply. "Oh, please, darling, don't leave me again! I can't stand it—I—"

"It is just for a little while, darling. I really shouldn't be here now, but I changed my routing at the last minute. I'm on my way to New York, to wind up a really big business deal. Then I'll be back, darling. No one knows that I'm here but you, and you must promise me not to tell a soul that you have seen me."

"But why, Dal?" She drew back from his embrace, trying to see his face in the dark.

"Well, I'm not seeing Aunt Lucia, and she'd be terribly hurt if she knew I had been here. Besides, our midnight rendezvous between trains would cause talk—much talk. Come back, Billy. We mustn't quarrel now, dear. Kiss me again."

While she was in his arms it was almost enough, but she knew that when she was alone again she would lie for tortured hours awake and fighting her doubts of him. When he could not give her another minute she broke away from him, after a last clinging kiss, and began to run across the rough, dry stubble of the winter-bitten lawn.

Before she reached the house she looked up instinctively to see if any lights yet burned. Every window was dark, even Nyda's, but as Billy's anxious eyes scanned the facade of the house she saw again the figure of a man creeping down the fire escape that led to the balcony outside Nyda's windows. She had no doubt that it was Eddie Banning, leaving Nyda.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

"I suppose Sawyers has been tattling on me," she began indignantly.

With shaking fingers she fitted her night key into the front door of the house and was unlocking it as noiselessly as possible up the stairs, when a grotesque figure appeared descending the stairs from the fourth floor. It was hard to recognize the impressive Sawyers in the night-shirted figure that held a pistol in a wavering right hand.

"It's just me, Sawyers," Billy gasped in a husky whisper. "Don't shoot! I—I've just been out for a breath of fresh air. I couldn't sleep."

"I thought I heard a noise down below," Sawyers told her sourly, his eyes ugly with suspicion. "Something woke me up—don't know just what it was. But I guess it's all right."

Grumbling, his nightshirt flapping about his legs, Sawyers turned and went back up the stairs.

When Billy went down for breakfast the next morning, she learned from Mrs. Meadows that Nyda was still suffering from a headache, and would not go to school that day.

T. Q. was accepting his coffee from Mrs. Meadows when Sawyers bent over him with a request for a private word with him in the library.

"What's the matter, dear?" Mrs. Meadows inquired of Billy. "You look quite pale, and your hands are shaking. Didn't you sleep well?"

"No, I'm afraid I didn't," Billy answered, scarcely knowing what she said, for her heart was pounding with a sickening apprehension of what Sawyers was saying to T. Q. Curtis.

Sawyers returned alone to the dining room.

"Mr. Curtis wishes to speak with you in the library, Miss Billy," he said to her, with no attempt to conceal the malice and contempt in his eyes.

She found her benefactor standing before the opened safe in the library, his tall, gaunt body sagging. And the eyes with which he looked at her were appalling and tragic, rather than angry.

"I suppose Sawyers has been tattling on me," she began.

"Billy, my safe was robbed last night," T. Q. interrupted her with sad sternness. "All of the jewelry I had given you girls, and the unset diamonds and four hundred dollars in cash were taken. No, don't interrupt please! Sawyers saw you kneeling before the safe. He says you were trying the combination—"

"That's a lie!" Billy gasped. "I had opened that section of the book case to look for a bead that had rolled under it, but I never touched the safe. Surely, Mr. Curtis, you don't think—"

"I don't know what to think, Billy, child. Sawyers called me in here a moment ago and asked me to open the safe, to see if its contents were intact. He refused to give his reasons for thinking I had been robbed, but when I found the safe empty of everything of value, he told me what he had seen last night. I find that I have been robbed as I've told you. I would almost as soon believe that I had robbed myself as to suspect you, child, but the facts are such that I must ask you for an explanation."

Billy's blue eyes were staring at him with incredulous horror. "You—you really think I robbed you, Mr. Curtis?"

"I'm not saying that I think so—yet. Sawyers saw you twirling the dial—all right, you say that is not true, but you admit that you were kneeling before the safe—"

"I told you!" Billy gasped in a sob. "I told you I was looking for a bead—but I swear I didn't touch the dial."

"Sawyers says he was awakened by a noise. He came downstairs to investigate, heard the outside door closing, saw you ascending the stairs in street clothes and coat. At half past eleven you were in neglect, in Nyda's room. Remember that I peeped in to tell you girls good night. Where were you, Billy?"

She opened her mouth to pour out the truth in passionate rebuttal, but before she had uttered a word she remembered her promise to Dal. She bent her head upon her hands and burst into tears.

"Tell me what you did with the stuff, Billy," old T. Q. begged her, his hand going out to stroke the bright chestnut hair. "You stole it for someone else. I know it was not for yourself. Was—it for my son?"

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS ROCKFORD EASY VICTOR; DIXON FOURTH IN MEET

Several Records Fell in District Contest Here Saturday

A driving north wind and dashes of rain at times, greeted the athletes of the annual track and field meet at the north side athletic field in Dixon Saturday afternoon. Despite the elements, records were shattered and some fine marks established for future contestants to shoot at. The attendance was very poor, only a few students and members of faculties of visiting schools daring to brave the chill wind which swept the field throughout the semi-finals in the morning and the finals during the afternoon.

Weather conditions appeared to spur on the contestants, every event furnishing plenty of thrills. Rockford lived up to the advance dope and walked away with the meet by a wide margin. Savanna nosed out Freeport which was doped to take second place and had to be satisfied with third. Dixon made a very good showing despite the fact that many new men were entered and scored in fourth place. The result of the meet was as follows:

GREYHOUND RACE MEET AT ELGIN OPENS THURSDAY

Forty Nights of "Dog" Racing Scheduled at Watch City

Thursday evening will mark the opening of "dog days" for Elgin and northern Illinois, that being the date set for the start of the greyhound race meet over the Kane County Kennel Club, over the quarter mile track at the 102 Ranch recreational center at Elgin.

With more than 300 prize dogs on hand for the initial races, racers, workmen have been redoubting their efforts to get the plant in shape for the season.

Both games played in the American league benefited the Yankees who were rained out with Detroit. The White Sox lost a close decision to the Red Sox 2-1, through bunched Boston hits and a Chicago error. Although outbidding the enemy, Connie Mack's aggregation lost. With the bases full, Schang of the Browns pitched a homer in the third and the advantage was too much to overcome.

ARE washed thoroughly and quickly in the Maytag during Spring Housecleaning. Washed in just a few minutes in the life-lasting cast-aluminum tub that keeps water hot for an entire washing. You will be surprised how easily the Maytag washes all of the bulky, hard-to-wash things, with so little effort on your part.

Try the Maytag at home next washday. There is no obligation nor expense. Wash big tubfuls of ordinary clothes in 3 to 7 minutes. Do a whole washing in one short hour. Wash even collar and cuff edges without hand-rubbing. Wash even greasy overalls clean as new in 10 minutes. If, after trial, the Maytag doesn't sell itself, don't keep it.

Maytag dealers everywhere follow the standardized rule of sending a Maytag to a home to do a week's washing free, and without obligation of any kind. This is the way all Maytag Gyrafoam Washers are sold.
